Building Energy Challenge

Frequently asked questions

Who can participate?

The program is intended for commercial, institutional and multi-family buildings. Any building owner, manager, or operator of such a property in Richmond is welcome to join the Challenge! Likewise, businesses occupying portions of a building may join.

How will the City of Richmond help participants reduce energy use?

The City will facilitate training and guidance for participants, focused on the personnel responsible for energy management in their facilities—usually building managers and operators. Trainings will be delivered by expert third-party “Energy Coaches”, who are experienced in supporting energy management. Trainings will focus on how to benchmark energy performance, develop energy saving projects, and take advantage of utility incentives in your buildings and facilities. The City also has resources for participants to define their own training needs.

When can you join the Challenge?

Participants are strongly encouraged to join prior to October 13, 2014. However, the City will accept participants at anytime until the Challenge’s completion in September 2015.

When will the Challenge occur?

The Challenge will run from October 2014 to October 2015, during which time buildings will receive training and other services to help them reduce energy use.

What is required to be eligible for recognition & rewards?

Participants wishing to be eligible for rewards from the City of Richmond during our “Good Energy Awards” must provide a building benchmarking report, including two years of utility data for the spaces that they control. Participants will track their energy performance between October 2014 and September 2015, comparing their energy use to the previous year.

How do I learn more or sign up?

Visit <https://energy.richmond.ca/energychallenge/about/> to learn more and register your building. Alternately, you can contact the Challenge’s “Energy Coaches” at City Green Solutions by emailing richmondenergychallenge@citygreen.ca or by calling 604-255-5734.
